Discussion: We believe this was a well organized event, but we were disappointed by the turnout. There were six parents (two work for the district) and two community members. There were four student tour guides, seven members of the SINI special ed. committee and three teachers. The public service announcement created by Todd Birmingham and Ashleigh Rozell was played in the conference room throughout the event. A listing of sports and extra- curricular activities was handed out along with handbooks and calendars. The student tour guides were given a list of locations to showcase and five separate tours were done throughout the open house. Parents and community members seemed to really enjoy the experience and said that the tour guides did an excellent job. The locations highlighted were, the Hudson Valley Lab in Room 302, the media center, the football field and tennis courts, one of the new special ed. rooms and one of the new regular ed. rooms, the auditorium, the cafeteria, the gym with the fitness rooms and the hall of fame area. Refreshments were served.

Brochures for the Open House were handed out at the Meet the Teacher Night for the high school. A notice was placed in the elementary newsletter. It was displayed on WVLT and on the district website.

Conclusions: We still need to encourage more parent involvement.
